Lt.-Governor To Retire

Ottawa, Sept. 15.—Alberta's lieutenant-governor, John Campbell Bowen, is slated for retirement before the next general election, it was established here today.

The election is expected next mid-summer, which would mean Governor Bowen leaving office perhaps in June.

Those talked of as the most likely successors are R. C. Marshall of Edmonton, J. J. Bowlen of Calgary, or Dr. A. E. Archer of Lamont, defeated Liberal candidate for Vegreville in the 1945 general election. Of the three the odd-on favorite is R. C. Marshall.

Governor Bowen already has served his full five-year term, and held office through an additional six years.

Predicts Let-Up In Living Costs

VANCOUVER.—A let-up in the rising cost of living was predicted Tuesday by I. K. Johnston of Toronto, general-manager of the Imperial Bank of Canada.

Mr. Johnston, with H. W. Thomson of the bank's Winnipeg office is here visiting the Imperial Bank's British Columbia branches.

"There is evidence," he said in an interview, "that supply is catching up with demand and that the market is changing from a buyers' to a sellers' market."

"There may be some readjustment but there need be no fear for the future."

He added a caution to businessmen, suggesting they would be wise to "begin to look the situation over and see their inventories are in proportion to their sales."

World of Wheat

by

H. G. L. Strange

Director "The Crop Testing Plan"

The Unwanted Surplus Of Registered Seed

There is today a large unwanted surplus of Registered seed in the prairie provinces. For the past two years there has been a great demand from European countries for Canadian seed wheat because the inclement weather had destroyed European crops. Many prairie farmers last year, therefore, purchased Registered seed and multiplied it specially for the purpose of supplying an export European market which they thought would continue. This last year, however, these European countries themselves harvested large crops so there is apparently no demand from them for any Canadian seed wheat.

What to do, then, with this surplus of Registered seed, which is many times in excess of the usual amounts purchased by prairie farmers. It would be a very great pity if this high class material, which has passed field inspection, were merely to be hauled to the elevators to be used as bread wheat. Every bushel of this good seed should be used for prairie crop improvement. Never before has such an opportunity occurred to secure so much good seed, and at reasonable prices, to improve the quality of Canadian crops, and so to improve the quality of Canadian wheat on world's markets.

Next week I will discuss a plan that has been suggested by which this valuable Registered seed wheat could be made available to Canadian farmers.

There was great excitement around Albert school last Wednesday when an airplane landed in Ivan Hardy's field. The pilot could not get above a fog bank and flew to phone to find out if it was clearer farther south. The school children and teacher had a first-hand opportunity to view the plane as the pilot told them to go up and look at it. If anyone was trying to call 713 to find out the particulars, I was out looking at the plane, too.

IRMA TRAGEDY TO BE RELIEVED FROM SALVATION ARMY FUND

The Wainwright Rural Service Unit of the Salvation Army has used the local fund available to help out in the Glasgow family fire disaster at Irma.

Last May, at the time of the annual Red Shield Appeal for funds, it was stated that a Rural Service Unit was formed at Wainwright, 20 per cent of the funds collected for the Salvation Army in this area are retained here and administered by this local committee, Mrs. L. W. Smith, chairman, Kenn Tory and Chas. Wilbraham.

The funds collected, mostly from the immediate vicinity of Wainwright, because of lack of time to complete the canvas of Irma and Edgerton areas amounted $516.30. Of this amount the Rural Service Unit retained $103.26. This fund is available for cases of extreme emergency such as in the Glasgow fire tragedy.

With the limited fund available in this initial season the amount donated to this family is small in comparison with their great need. A committee is working at Irma and possibly other organizations will assist. However the Wainwright Rural Service Unit will accept for forwarding any contribution of money, clothes, furniture, etc., for the Glasgow family or for the Salvation Army.

It is in this impartial and practical administration to the needs of humanity in time of distress that the Salvation Army does its great social work. This family needs help urgently and as a member of the community served by Wainwright we are pleased to bring the case to public attention. —Wainwright Star.

We would also like to mention those organizations such as the W.I. groups from Orbindale, Irma, Albert and Battle River, also the Salvation Army and the Royal Purple Lodge, Wainwright, and the Bandette Orchestra.

Dutch Immigrants Running Big Industry in California

PARAMOUNT, Calif. — "Shotgun" dairying, they call it, and it's big business for a colony of Dutch immigrants in this flat suburban district.

They feed copra, among other things, and they often wear out an entire herd in a year.

They supply more milk than any other county in the United States, yet they can't quite meet the needs of the Los Angeles metropolitan area alone.

This isn't farming. It's industry. The cows are in stalls and corrals, for there are no placid meadows. Land is too costly for alfalfa growing. Paved streets, instead of country roads, bisect the even rows of houses and barns and the rumble of feed trucks is never stilled.

Forced feeding (the shotgun technique) consists simply of giving bossy milk she'll eat of a rich diet—copra, linseed meal, cottonseed meal, hay.

English Girl Making Good As Blacksmith

LONDON.—The traditional blacksmith of giant frame and "large and sinewy hands" has been displaced by a petite brunette with a mass of wavy hair, a cream complexion and a dazzling smile.

Down at the smithy in Kensal road, Paddington, if you hear no ringing of the hammer it is probably because Smithy Jean McGowan, 24, is taking a few minutes off to repair her make-up.

But soon she will be back at her anvil, neat and unruined in workmanlike blue dungarees, fresh despite the heat of the furnace.

Jean is the wife of Dick McGowan who did 17 years as an army blacksmith, then started work with a firm in Ealing when he was discharged in 1945.

Jean went along to watch him at work one day and was so fascinated she decided to hammer herself out a career on the same anvil.

"My husband said teaching a girl couldn't be any tougher than that of the army recruits he'd had to train, so he took me in hand right away."

Jean proved such an apt pupil that in less than six months the McGowans had started their own business in Paddington as art metal and general blacksmiths and antique copyists.

Dick still does most of the heavier jobs, but says that on light jobs delicate jobs, like the wrought-iron gate and the ornamental fountains, his wife is the better of the two.

Must Have Stand-In With Lady Luck

LINDSAY.—Lady Luck smiled on William White, of Toronto, a summer visitor in the Kawartha Lakes vacation area.

White purchased a ticket on a new automobile put up by the Lindsay Kinsmen Club to aid welfare work. Driving home, he was hit by a car in July, White was very seriously hurt and his car completely demolished in an accident west of Lindsay. He was in hospital here for some time before being moved to hospital in Toronto.

Then came Kinsmen carnival time and Bill White was the winner of the new car.

Has Good Reason For Starting Afresh

OAKVILLE, Ont. — At 81, manufacturer James R. Kendall is starting his business afresh. He's busy making plans to re-establish his leather factory which recently was destroyed by fire.

"Some people have suggested that as an old man, I ought to take the insurance money and call it a day," he said. "I had 30 men working at the plant and that would mean 30 families with no livelihood. A man is as old as he feels and I don't feel my 81 years yet."

CONDITIONS TOO MUCH FOR CAFE OWNER

VANCOUVER.—Bert Sancy found current conditions too much for him. He closed his cafe, and gave these reasons: a 450 per cent. increase in rent; imposition of an 11 per cent. business tax; increase in cost of supplies and "inability and lack of desire" to raise prices to meet operating costs.

Smile of the Week—

The head of the house approached the young man.

"Look here," he said, "you've been calling here to see my daughter for a long time now. May I ask what are your intentions?"

"Well," said the suitor, "I had hoped to become an addition to your family."

"Let me tell you," was the reply, "there's nothing doing in addition. You'll have to subtract."

Europeans learned algebra from the Arabs.

This system has built up a milk production of 10,500,000 gallons a month and yields $61,000,000 annually to the dairymen. They have to produce as much milk as possible because feed is high. All of it is shipped in.

Copra, the dried and broken kernels of the coconut, comes from the Philippines. Plants at nearby San Pedro crush it, extract the oil and mill the residue for cattle feed.

Such is the intensified activity of Paramount, Artesia, Clearwater, Bellflower and Norwalk. The Dutch, along with substantial numbers of Portuguese and Swiss, go about their dairying with no sentiment whatever. When their cows "burn out," they sell them for beef and buy fresh ones for about $300 each.

The average dairyman has 100 cows on 10 acres or less. He expects each cow to produce 1,200 gallons a year. He can't afford to be sentimental.

The influx of the Dutch began after the Second World War. Charles Koopmans, who operates an insurance and travel agency in Paramount, estimates their present number at 20,000 or more, many of whom left Holland because of the effects of the war.

"Holland," he said, "is overpopulated. Those coming over now are largely relatives of Hollanders who have made money in the dairy business here and who can set them up with a piece of land and a string of cows. Since the majority are experienced dairymen, visas are easy to get."

In almost every respect they become Americanized rapidly. Many know English before they come and the rest pick it up in six to eight months. They present no problem for the schools.

As workers, they are unexcelled. One newly-arrived family picked up the pails and marched off to the barn on their relative's dairy six hours after they got off the train. That's typical. When a newspaper photographer called on them that afternoon, they declined to pose. "There is work to do," the father said sternly. "We have no time for pictures." He and all the kids—10 of them—turned to their milking.

New Look Idea For Men Has One Merit

The new look for men is on its way, says a dispatch from Paris. The idea is that the vest should contrast vividly with the coat and pants. Colors suggested for vests are scarlet, cinnamon, lavender, pearl gray and bright yellow. We don't like the idea of going around like peacocks says the Windsor Star, but there is one merit in the new look idea. A vest, which generally is as good as new when pants and coat are done, could be worn indefinitely. There ought to be some room for a crack about vested interests but we can't think of it.

Japanese Papers Are Valuable As Junk

TOKYO, Japan. — Major Tokyo newspapers have doubled the size of their daily issues—from two to four pages. Slightly better newspaper production has permitted the increase.

Subscribers here reported they are as happy about the increase as the publishers—because newspapers are worth much more as wrapping paper.

A three-month subscription to a local paper costs about 45 cents. Junk dealers are paying about 60 cents for a three-month stack of old newspapers.

Cottages To Replace Trailer Camp

The Canada-wide housing shortage has resulted in thousands of makeshift communities and individual accommodation. House-building has only nibbled at the demand. But this trailer camp on the outskirts of Toronto is to disappear following a decision by city council favoring erection of 50 low-rental homes on the site.

Few Willing To Quit Work At Fifty-Five

MINNEAPOLIS.—Father may be getting on in years but he isn't ready to retire yet.

He has reached the age of 55 and he's fairly well fixed financially. But he doesn't want to quit working and lie in the sun. He wants to keep right on the job as long as he can.

Two out of every three persons who answered a poll taken by the Northwestern Life Insurance Company said they want to keep the nose to the grindstone.

The company asked more than 3,100 policyholder families the following question:

"If you knew right now that you would be financially able to retire when you reach age 55 or 60, how would you expect to spend your retirement years?"

Loath To Quit
Thirty-two per cent. said they wanted to keep their present jobs and would start living off their retirement income when they could support themselves or dependents no longer.

Another 33 per cent. of the 3,150 answers said they might "ease up" a bit, but they want to throw their spare time right back into the work mill again, with emphasis on religious and community work.

The remaining 35 per cent. are the ones who want to take things easy. Their main thoughts were those of fishing and hunting, with a little gardening or golf thrown in to break up the day.

Becomes A Habit
It appears that the longer one works the longer he wants to work. Only 28 per cent. of those now under 40 wanted to continue work after reaching retirement age while more than 37 per cent. of those past 40 wanted to keep right on going as long as they could.

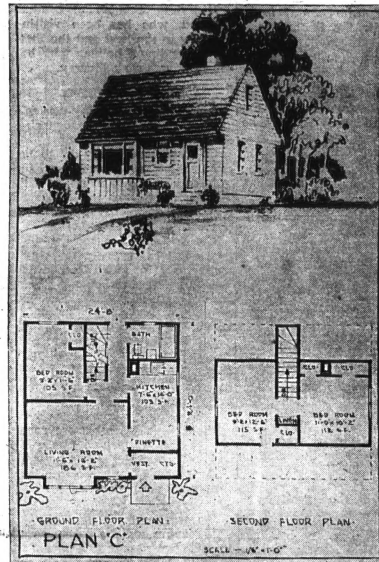

A factory foreman added a little note to his answer and it showed how most people feel about retirement. He said:

"When I'm not able to hobble around the plant any longer, I'll get me a stool and run the freight elevator. I'd go crazy with nothing to do."

WILL USE SWIMMING POOL FOR BASEMENT

NASHVILLE, Tenn.—Mr. and Mrs. Charles Kemp, who have a place to build a home, want to learn to swim. They asked the city building inspector's office for a permit to construct a swimming pool.

After they learn to swim, Mrs. Kemp said, they plan to build a house over the pool and make it the basement of their home.

Houses are to rent for $34.50 and $37.50. Plan "C", shown here, will have five rooms and dinette. These small cottages have become part of Canada's post-war scene, as typical as log cabins 100 years ago.—S.N.S. Photo.

First Discovery of Oil Canned Salmon Not In North America Likely To Be Scarce

CUBA, N.Y.—This year marks the 321st anniversary of the finding of an oil spring in North America. The first written record of petroleum's discovery on this continent, seven years after the Pilgrims landed in New England, mentions the China Lake oil spring.

A Franciscan missionary discovered and recorded the then mysterious "pool which could be set afire," as it was described by the Seneca Indians.

Friar Joseph de la Roche d'Allion, a missionary from France, visited the spring on July 18, 1627, and in a letter telling of his travels, mentioned discovering "a very good oil."

He wrote that the Indians at first treated the sticky fluid with superstitious reverence. Later, they discovered its valuable medicinal properties and for many years it was found on the patent medicine shelves labeled "Seneca Oil."

VANCOUVER.—The Fraser River's reduced salmon catch this year will not directly affect the quantity of canned salmon available on the consumer market this winter, a Fisheries Department spokesman said.

"Salmon caught here for consumer sale is not all pulled from the Fraser," he said.

Canned salmon production figures on the West Coast for August were up over the last two years, he said. Already this year 490,350 cases of 48 one-pound cans have been packed. This compared with 1947's 422,000 and 1946's 347,000 cases.

It was reported that the Fraser River catch this year would not reach its originally expected 1,000,000 fish.

Many Danish women have "custody mirrors" which enable them to look up and down the street from their windows.

Chemical Used During War Now Controls Weeds

OTTAWA.—One of the war's top secret weapons, the powerful chemical 2,4-D now is being used successfully in the constant effort to increase prairie crops.

An agriculture department spokesman said that, all other things being equal, western Canada's grass and cereal crops will probably soon show growth as a direct result of the use of 2,4-D.

It has revolutionized weed control methods in Canada as well as other countries, said Dr. R. O. Bibbey of the botany and plant pathology division of the department.

So powerful is the chemical certain crops are just as susceptible to certain weeds. But wheat, oats and rye—Canada's three big cereal crops—are wholly resistant to 2,4-D's killing qualities and flax is almost as resistant.

2,4-D is "very successful" in control of wild mustard and stinkweed, Dr. Bibbey said in an interview. Sprayed over the broad prairies, it makes quick work of the weeds but does vital crops no harm.

"It is estimated 3,000,000 to 5,000,000 acres in western Canada were sprayed with 2,4-D this year."

This and related chemicals and their weed-control showings will be reviewed in Winnipeg Nov. 3-5 at the second western Canadian weed control conference, Dr. Bibbey announced. He is secretary of the national weed committee, composed of provincial and federal officials, which sponsors the conference.

Because of 2,4-D's "two-fisted" type of attack—on food crops as well as on weeds—its application must be handled carefully, he said.

Farmers now can purchase for 75 to 80 cents enough 2,4-D to spray an acre, Dr. Bibbey said. With sprayers available for $200, a man owning a big farm can use the powerful chemical at a cost of about $1 an acre.

Gravy will not soak through the lower crust of a meat pie if the white of an egg is brushed over the crust.

Don't waste the good pot liquor drained from spinach. Use it in soup or healthful chilled vegetable cocktails.

If you are going to be your own decorator, here's a tip worth trying: Mix flour with your paint to the consistency of soft putty and fill cracks or seams, using a knife blade. Allow to harden thoroughly before painting or papering.

If you have an old aluminum saucepan, don't discard it. It can be used for cleaning badly tarnished silver in a most magical way. Place in the saucepan a quart of boiling water, a teaspoon or so of soda, and a tablespoon of kitchen salt, and immerse the silver in this. Carefully rinse and dry the silver afterwards.

OUR COMPLETE SHORT STORY—

NO FORTUNE WANTED

—By—
MARTIN MILBURN

THE long, sleek red roadster turned into the gas station and stopped at the nearest pump. Don Nichols, his face begrimed with grease and his hands black from using oily rags, stroled over to the car and leaned easily on the door.

"You back, Miss Anderson?" he said, "I just filled your tank yesterday."

"I thought I'd better have the oil checked," she replied primly.

He grinned and proceeded to check the oil—found it adequate. He returned to the door where she was sitting and said, "I'm afraid there's nothing I can do for you today."

"Thank you, Mr. Nichols."

She was about to step on the starter, hesitated, then turned to him and said softly, "Don, must we go on like this forever?" She placed a hand on his arm.

He grinned again, but with something of an effort. "You know how I feel about you, Elaine. But it won't work, and you know it."

"But why?" she asked. "Why won't it work? It's been done before."

"Certainly. Someone else has done it before. But I'm not built that way. When I make my pile it'll be my own—not something I've been donated."

She was on the verge of tears. "I can't help it if I've got money. It won't be anything I ordered. There's nothing I can do about it."

He softened suddenly. "I know, Elaine, and I'm not blaming you. I'm crazy about you but I can't see my way clear to doing anything about it. There'd always be that money between us. It's just one of those things, not your fault and not mine. I'd give anything if only you were penniless. But you've got money—you've got millions. I'd always have the feeling that people were referring to me as the man who married Elaine Anderson."

"Must our lives be ruined by your pride," Elaine restrained her tears, tossed her head back—she had some pride, too.

"I make enough out of this gas station," he continued, "to support a wife—yes, and a family. When I get married it'll be on that basis—and that basis only."

Her lips set stubbornly. "Goodbye, Mr. Nichols." She stepped on the starter, steered the flashy car out into the road, where it soon streaked out of sight.

Don went back into the station, kicked an empty oil can and sent it clattering against the wall. Before he had time to do more damage the bell rang, indicating a car was pulling up. He went back to the pumps.

He was unable to sleep that night. Tossing and turning he could think only of Elaine's lovely face and how much he wanted her. Old Moneybags Anderson, he thought, why did he had to have such a beautiful daughter. Life would have been pleasant in the extreme except that there was no life for him without Elaine—and he could not have Elaine because she was an heiress. Someone else could marry an heiress, but not Don Nichols. He would make his own way in life, Elaine or no Elaine. Finally, when it was nearing dawn, he fell asleep.

He felt, not good, but better in the morning. It was an unhappy decision but he had made up his mind. He could not have Elaine and that was all there was to it.

It was after shaving, while he was examining his clean, shining face in the mirror, that the idea came to him. Of course, why hadn't he thought of it before? Suddenly life took on a rosy hue. It might not work but there was no harm in trying. He rode to the station with a song on his lips.

It was almost a week before Elaine showed up at the station. She had gotten over her anger and could not stay away. Don advanced to the car with a cheery smile. "How are you, Elaine?"

She said nothing, looked at him questioningly. "Elaine," he said, "Will you marry me?"

Her jaws dropped. For a moment she could not find words. Then she leaned over and felt his forehead, "Are you sure you feel all right, Don?"

"Oh, I feel just fine, just fine."

She closed her eyes and counted to ten, then opened them and asked, "Now would you mind repeating what you just said?"

"I said, will you marry me?"

And all she could say was, "Oh, Don."

After the ceremony was over, they rode out into the country in Don's car. It was evening and Elaine leaned happily on Don's shoulder. A justice of the peace had performed the ceremony, and no one, as yet, knew about it.

They parked by a little, curving stream, and Elaine whispered, "I'm so glad your pride didn't keep you from it."

"Yes, it would have been awful."

"Marriage," she declared, "is a partnership. We're partners, aren't we?"

"You bet." His eyes were closed; he was drunk in the nearness of her.

"Well," she persisted, "Since we're partners, what you've got is mine, and what I've got is yours."

"Certainly."

"In that case," Elaine said, "We can open a string of gasoline stations—from here to the coast."

"No, we can't."

Elaine looked up at him. "Why not?"

"Because we haven't enough money."

"You," he interrupted, "Have nothing."

"What do you mean?"

"He took a deep breath. This is it," he knew, "he said, 'That if I went to your father looking like a gentleman, he might consent to our marriage. So I went to see him immediately after a tough day at the station. My face was dirty, my hands were filthy, my denims were torn, I looked a mess. I told him I was going to marry you.'"

"You do, he said, and I'll cut her off without a cent. So there you are—you're cut off without a cent."

For a long time she said nothing. She snuggled close to him.

"Good old dad," she breathed, "I guess we'll have to get a string of gasoline stations the hard way."

Manitoba's Sunflower Crop

Part of Southern Manitoba's 35,000 acres of sunflowers; at midsummer growth was good.

Sunflower acreage in Manitoba is on the increase and incidentally, corn acreage has decreased, which may be due to better rainfall in the southwestern part of the province where the sunflowers and corn are chiefly grown. Corn stands more drought than sunflowers. Increase in sunflowers is also influenced by general propaganda and good prices for oil, and the operation of an oil extraction plant at Altona. Moreover, better varieties are available. Last surveys on the Southern Manitoba crop indicate there are approximately 32,000 acres in sunflowers as compared to 23,000 in 1947.

Right: At the recent Farmers' Field Day held at Morden this young lad was very much interested in a couple of practical rabbit traps which might be made at home by archers who want to get rid of this pest. Left, this interesting little machine which can be run by hand or by a small motor shafts peas which drop into a trough and are collected in the basket, thus speeding up home canning.

EDMONTON.—Between 4,000 and 5,000 Netherlands families will come to Canada next year with the intention of purchasing farm lands, Resources Minister Hon. J. MacKinnon announced.

The minister said negotiations now are being carried out by Canadian and Netherlands authorities about the proposed movement which would involve about 20,000 persons.

"They are not farm laborers," Mr. MacKinnon said, "but people with money who will eventually purchase and work their own farms."

Rush In Alaska For Uranium

$10,000 Bonus Offered To Prospector Locating A Sizeable Deposit

ANCHORAGE, Alaska.—A $10,000 bonus offered by the Atomic Energy Commission to any prospector locating a sizeable deposit of uranium has started Alaska's biggest "stampede" since the gold rush days of '98.

Prospectors roaming Alaska's wilderness have discarded their gold pans and sluice boxes. They're hustling the hills for signs of pitch-blende, gumite, carnotite and other uranium-bearing minerals.

B. D. Stewart, territorial commissioner of mines, said his office has been besieged by prospectors seeking information on uranium. He said pamphlets prepared by the AEC giving methods of locating and recognizing minerals containing uranium are being distributed.

"The prospectors are hitting for the hills in great numbers, but they aren't looking for gold," he said. "With the price fixed and production costs soaring, you can't make gold mining pay."

"But a uranium strike would certainly pay. In addition to the bonus the government is guaranteeing minimum prices and even paying transportation costs of the mineral in some cases."

Stewart said he expected the rush to hit full swing next summer when all prospectors will have assembled the necessary gear and studied up on methods of locating uranium.

"We know there are uranium bearing minerals in the territory but we don't know how large the deposits are," he said.

If uranium is found in large quantities, future generations of Alaskans may reminisce on the "uranium rush" days of '49.

CATTLE RUNS MAY CUT FEED DEMAND

An exceptional run of hot weather has enabled farmers to make unexpected progress with the harvest and almost all the attention in the west is now given to the major crops.

Except for some deliveries of new straw to feed stores there has been little movement and the larger buyers at stockyards and plants do not expect any important additions to reserves for about three weeks.

A very heavy cut of hay has been put up and stacks have reappeared in all directions.

Upland hay is still considered in the $22 to $25 a ton range but several factors may interfere with hay quotations shortly.

In some quarters attention is being drawn to the very heavy run of cattle. This week records for receipts were broken at Calgary on two successive days. Well informed quarters talk of much higher Canadian meat prices now that the government is permitting the heavy shipments to the U.S.

The country, it is said, is being cleared of cattle at a rapid rate and the hay buyers are beginning to consider what effect this is likely to have later on hay and feed needs.

Pastures are good to date with lots of cattle and horses out on feed.

On the Control of Ergot
Ergot of grain crops, a disease to which rye is particularly susceptible, is well known to most farmers. Owing to the fact that many farmers have recently become interested in growing rye as a cash grain crop, interest in the control of ergot in Western Canada is now much greater than it has been in the past.

What is Ergot? Ergot is a fungus disease of grains and grasses. Although it is usually most conspicuous in rye, it also attacks wheat, barley, sometimes oats, and many wild and cultivated grasses. In the heads of diseased plants, hard, dark purple horn-like fungous growths, commonly called ergot bodies or "ergots", take the place of the normal (true) kernels. These ergot bodies are highly poisonous to man and livestock. Consequently, care should be taken to remove any ergot bodies from grain that is to be used for human consumption as well as from grain that is fed to stock. Furthermore, hay and straw that is heavily contaminated with ergot should not be fed to livestock.

Control Measures. In the control of ergot the use of ergot-free (clean) seed is of first importance. Grain containing ergot bodies should be thoroughly cleaned before being sown. Most of these bodies can be removed by cleaning machines, but small or broken ones are difficult to get rid of. The most effective way of eliminating them is to immerse the seed in a strong brine, made by adding 40 pounds of salt to 25 gallons of water. The seed is then stirred, and the ergot bodies float to the surface where they can be skimmed off. In order to prevent seed injury to germination, the seed must be thoroughly washed to free it of salt, and dried immediately afterwards.

Effective control measures also include: (1) Crop rotation. (2) Deep ploughing or cultivation of ergot-infested fields. (3) Early cutting of grasses on roadsides, headlands, or in fields adjacent to susceptible grain crops.

For further information on the control of ergot see your Agricultural Representative, or write to your nearest Dominion Laboratory of Plant Pathology (Winnipeg, Saskatoon, or Edmonton), or to Line Elevators Farm Service, Winnipeg.

A Successful Program

THREE YEARS AFTER THE END of the war it is possible to consider what progress has been made in solving the post-war problems, some of which appeared formidable as we approached the transition period from war to peace. One of these problems was that of rehabilitating the 1,000,000 Canadians who served in the armed forces, and helping them to become established in civilian life. It is now believed that sufficient time has passed to survey the results of the rehabilitation program, and according to Walter S. Woods, Deputy Minister of Veterans Affairs, the veteran has been "no problem child; but normal, and a little above the average because of his war experience."

Many Veterans Were Assisted

In a recent interview, Mr. Woods pointed out that great foresight was required, together with "legislation and action" to achieve the satisfactory results from Canada's rehabilitation program which are evident today. The cost of the program has been $1,500,000,000, and this money has been used to establish veterans on the land and in business, and to assist them to take vocational training or university courses. During the past three years, 34,000 men have been established on the land, at a cost of $174,000,000. These include 19,000 full-time farmers who are now working 3,300,000 acres of land. In addition, 78,000 veterans have received vocational training, 53,000 have gone to universities and more than 60,000 have been set up in business with benefits or loans.

Housing Has Been Problem

The chief difficulty in the rehabilitation program has been the housing problem. While all sections of the population has been affected by the acute shortage of homes in Canada since the war, many veterans have been seriously handicapped in successfully re-establishing themselves because of this problem. Otherwise, Canada's re-establishment program is considered to be singularly satisfactory and successful. While credit is due to the planning and administration of the program, and to the fact that large expenditures were made, the greatest credit should be given to the veterans themselves for having taken advantage of the opportunities which were offered to them, and for successfully readjusting themselves to civilian life. It is a hopeful sign for the future of our country that this great post-war problem, which might have presented many serious difficulties, has progressed so satisfactorily.

FUNNY And OTHERWISE

Cop: "Don't you know that's a safety zone?" Woman driver: "Of course—that's why I drove in here."

A man returned to his native village after being away for 30 years, and knocked on the door of his sister's house. "Hello, Mary," he said, when his sister opened the door. "I'm your brother Fred." "Well, what do you want?" she asked crossly.

Prospective Bridegroom: "I'm getting married at Christmas. Are licenses expensive in this town?" Clerk: "Seven and six down, sir, and your entire income for the rest of your life."

"You're the most unpunctual person I've ever met. When's your birthday?" "Ah, late again!"

"Is that hair tonic any good?" "Well, I spilled some of it on my comb last week and now it's a brush."

Annoyed on account of the non-delivery of some coal he had ordered, a man wrote to the National Coal Board: "Cancel order immediately."

He received the reply: "Regret cannot cancel immediately. You must take your turn."

"I suppose you'll want me to make a speech. What shall I talk about?" "Two minutes!"

In a country newspaper this ad appeared: "The man who picked up my wallet on Walnut street was recognized. He is requested to return it."

In the next issue this reply was published: "The recognized man who picked up the wallet requests the loser to call and get it."

Office Boy: "The manager told me to tell you that he glanced through those papers, sir." Cashier: "Just a cursory examination, I suppose?" Office Boy: "You're right, sir. I never heard such language in all my life."

Father: "The man who marries my daughter will get a prize." Ardent Suitor: "May I see it?"

A small boy was taken to church for the first time. At one stage the clergyman announced: "We shall now sing hymn number two hundred and twenty-two—Ten thousand times ten thousand, Two hundred and twenty-two."

The little boy nudged his mother: "I say, mummy," he whispered, "do we have to work this out?"

The lady brought in a plateful of extremely thinly sliced bread, which rather dismayed her hungry hired man. "Did you cut these, Mrs. Brown?" he asked. "Yes, I cut them," came the stern reply. "O.K.," the hired man went on. "I'll deal."

In ancient civilizations myrrh was used as an incense, a perfume and as a drug.

Canada's Advance Lies Northward

Resources Minister Deeply Impressed With Development Of The Territories

OTTAWA.—A 7,000-mile air journey has convinced Resources Minister MacKinnon that the route of Canada's advance lies north.

The resources minister returned from a three-week tour of Alberta and the Northwest Territories "deeply impressed" with the tremendous strides the Dominion has made in the development of mineral resources.

"The first time I went to Yellowknife," he said in an interview, "it was just a prospecting area. Nothing was developed and that is only 10 years ago."

"Today, the face of the Northwest Territories has changed. There are three gold mines in Yellowknife. Soon, I believe, the Northwest Territories will equal Ontario and Quebec in the amount of mineral production."

In Yellowknife, where there had been nothing but bare ground in 1938, Mr. MacKinnon saw strawberries and tomatoes.

"The agricultural season is short but intense," he added. "The climate also is severe, but it still hasn't kept some 4,000 persons from Yellowknife and the surrounding area."

At one of the three gold mines (Giant-Yellowknife), Mr. MacKinnon helped pour the first gold brick the company has produced.

"Within a matter of months, two other significant events will take place," he continued. "One will be the flow of hydro-electric power from the Snare river power project in the N.W.T. and the other will be the completion of the Grimshaw-Hay river road on the border of Alberta and the Territories."

"On these two projects alone the government is spending more than $7,000,000."

FISH BOWL NEARLY CAUSES A FIRE

SPY HILL, Sask.—Mrs. Addie Carter recently smelted some other burning and noticed wisps of smoke coming from the table in the living room, she found that the sunlight pouring into the room, focused through the glass of a goldfish bowl on the centre of the table, had caused the dolly underneath it to smolder in two or three places.

Club members are contributing regular amounts with which they hope in a couple of years to be able to charter a ship to take the parents to Canada.

Paper Publishing Costs Soar

TORONTO.—Costs of publishing Canadian newspapers have increased more than 200 per cent. since 1941, the Canadian Daily Newspaper Association reports. The CDNA was commenting on a New York report which said rising United States publishing costs were causing three-cent daily papers to disappear from newstands.

Sixty per cent. of Canadian daily newspapers now charge five cents a copy, 27.7 charge four cents and 12.3 three cents, the association said.

Glow-Worm Grotto

River Of Living "Stars" Runs Through New Zealand Caverns

WAITOMO, New Zealand.—Three persons thread their way carefully along a passageway far under the surface of the earth here in northern New Zealand. You are one of them. The trio comes finally to the banks of an underground river, flowing silently through cavernous gloom. There is a landing stage with a dim light cutting the blackness for a few feet, and revealing a boat alongside.

"Step in, please," the tall young guide whispers, "quietly."

You are in the boat. You push away into the darkness, and look back rather uncertainly at the dim light by the landing stage, now receding.

Silence, Please

The guide stands erect and pulls the boat upstream by a rope fastened at intervals to the walls. You can't see it, but you occasionally feel its wet strands against your face.

"Can't use the oars," the guide whispers. "No noise, please. Don't strike a light. No smoking."

The journey continues around a bend in the river, through an archway and into still another cavernous room. The only sound is the soft swish of the boat's bow parting the waters of the unseen river, and the occasional splash of water-drops from somewhere above.

You want to ask about the earthquakes which frequently shake this part of the world, and about the active volcano of Ngauruhoe above you and a few miles to the southeast. Instead, you hang on to the side of the boat and strain your eyes for a sight of something—anything.

Millions Of Stars

You are rewarded. As the boat moves ahead, a pale glow begins to manifest itself. The sides of the cavern become faintly visible and the black surface of the river begins to reflect a sheen of light.

Then you are in the presence of a phenomenon almost past description. The cavern ceiling is alit with a soft green-white illumination of a million stars. Some are dim, some bright as energetic little flashlights. Some twinkle and some glow.

The twinkling effect is heightened by reflection in the ripple in the river caused by the progress of your boat. A million jewels are above and around you, the entire cavern alight with their scintillating luminescence.

This is the glow-worm grotto of Waitomo, and these are the glow-worms.

They are carnivorous and they are hunting their prey, the small flies that follow the course of the river in from its emergence from the outdoors a long way off.

"I'll tell you a little about them now," the guide says, "although any sound will cause a large section of them to douse their lights."

"Each worm is about an inch and a half long and is encased in a plastic-like capsule half again as long. The worm and the capsule are both glass-like and you can see through each; when I hold a light close in a moment you will see through the body of the worm to its vital organs, and will see the light in its tail."

"We don't know what causes the light, except that it is not phosphorescent. It seems to be definitely electric. The worm can turn his light on or off at will and can regulate the brilliance. The hungrier he is, the brighter the light."

Widely-known as a racehorse owner, he was charged in a resolution with misusing and misappropriating state treasury funds while "famine is staring us in the face in part of the state." ## Only Woman Keeper In The World's Largest Zoo Has Quite A Record

NEW YORK — A simple frame house across the street from the Bronx Zoo has changed hands. The former landlady was nervous because her tenant was raising simultaneously a tiger, a black leopard and two lion cubs.

"I bought the house and lot," says Mrs. Helen Martini, keeper of the zoo's animal nursery, "because she worried about the animals eating her grandchild while I was upstairs coaxing my little babies to eat a bite of meat."

Mrs. Martini, only woman keeper in the largest zoo in the world, has quite a record. Single-handed, she has raised four tigers, three lions and a leopard, because the mothers were too ferocious to tend to their cubs themselves. As a personal hobby she breeds and raises vampire bats, pack rats, ground squirrels and white-footed mice.

As a daily occupation she presides over a delicately tinted pink-and-blue nursery in the 300-lion house. Her charges include a new born bambi (white-tailed deer), an addax (African antelope bred for the first time in captivity), a young orang-outang, a woolly monkey from South Africa, and a cageful of tiny marine sets.

She weighs 100 pounds, "but when I worry as I did this spring when Daeca, one of the tigers I raised, had her first litter of four, I dropped to 85 pounds."

"The curator wouldn't let me in the cage," she said next to for 24 hours. Two cubs came in the morning, but the other two weren't born until afternoon. When it was all over Daeca took them out of the box and brought them over to me."

Mrs. Martini says she has never been hurt. "It's just a matter of getting them young," she says, "and treating them nice."

"She disdains tricks as 'unnatural.' This is no circus. If they do anything real bad, I give them a slap."

At 36, Mrs. Martini has dainty dimensions, diffident gestures, a decided manner and the handiwork of a cow puncher. Her husband is the keeper of the lion house. As a child in Newfoundland, where she was born, and later in New York, where she was raised, she was preoccupied with birds.

"My mother sent me for a pair of shoes I needed," she recalls, "and I bought two canaries. I saved all my pin money for birds. I tamed wild starlings, made little cages myself. I was the pet of the pet shops."

An only child herself, Mrs. Martini has no children of her own. She thinks that may explain her absorption with animals.

"I just take care of them like you would a baby. I use a typical baby formula—and don't worry too much. Noise of them ever has been unruly or mean. They listen to the tone of your voice."

"I'm well paid when I walk in to see them on exhibit on a Sunday afternoon and in front of 500 people they come over to greet me."

SCIENTISTS SEARCHING FOR WORLD'S BEST FINE

PITTSBURGH.—Westinghouse research scientists are trying to build the world's "best" fire, one that will burn faster, give off more heat and waste less fuel than any ever built. Such a fire is needed to drive the engines of the newest jet planes and tomorrow's gas turbine locomotives and ships.

Frontier College Takes Learning To Far North

TORONTO. — The real Canada is not a narrow populated belt bordering the United States—it's the rugged wilderness to the north with its countless camps.

With words such as these, Dr. E. W. Bradwin, principal of Frontier College, dispatched a group of university students to bring education to the men living in the camps.

For 50 years the little college has worked with these frontiersmen. Its instructors are usually third-year students who work during the day with their pupils in lumber camps and on the section gangs. In the evening they teach elementary subjects and citizenship.

The laborer-teacher is chosen from many applicants. He is warned that the life is hard—that the foreman "will probably try to run him out of the camp." His teaching equipment is carried in a kit bag. His school may be a tent or calabash.

Dr. Bradwin, associated with the college since shortly after its founding, said the instructor's reward is not financial but in the knowledge that he is serving Canada and shaping citizenship. Among his former "pupils" members are three Rhodes scholars — "all of my successful teachers have made good in their professions."

The laborer-teacher gradually obtains the confidence of his companions before holding classes. He first starts discussion groups, later dividing his time between these and classes.

With many displaced persons now in the Canadian bush, Frontier has found a greater demand for its elementary English course. Dr. Bradwin, who holds degrees from Queen's and Columbia Universities, is proud of the college's own primer which 64,000 men have studied.

"We are now up there to heal the world," said the tall, grey-haired scholar. "We do not touch controversial matters such as capital and labor relations. We represent progress in Canada and leave the rest to its laws."

Many of the 2,300 laborer-teachers have sent in the past 50 years have returned for another summer in the bush. He told me of one who this year again asked to be placed on a section gang. Ten former members have sent their sons to join the staff.

Each instructor receives a bursary from the college of at least $100 for his summer work plus whatever wages he earns.

All this is accomplished on an annual income of $22,000, derived mainly from donations. Some assistance comes from the Ontario education and the federal labor departments. Canadians have donated 1,000,000 magazines and books which the college has distributed in the past six years. Books on travel and history and good novels.

In 1947 more than 1,500 camp workers studied under 55 laborer-teachers—6,200 hours were spent in class instruction.

ANYONE WANT TO RENT

AN ENGLISH CASTLE

PRUDHOE, Northumberland, England.—An 800-year-old castle and all medieval inconveniences is to let for $50 ($200) yearly. A Norman relic that barred the way to a Scottish king when he invaded England in 1174, the castle has only one snag. There's a $300 ($3,000) premium to pay before the tenant can move in.

Is lovely young Jessie, the flower of Dunblane.—Annahill.

ON THE SIDE

—By E. V. Durling

The sun has gone down o'er the lofty Ben Lomond, And left the red clouds to preside o'er the scene; While lonely I stay in the calm summer gloamin' To muse on sweet Jessie, the flower of Dunblane. How sweet is the brier with its soft folding blossom, And sweet is the hawk with its mantle of green Yet sweeter and fairer, oh dear to this bosom, Is lovely young Jessie, the flower of Dunblane.—Annahill.

(The Scots are never thought of as great lovers but perhaps that is because careful consideration has not been given the matter. What other nation has so many beautiful love songs?)

SAYS SHE

"Will you please start referring to the shortage of husband material," writes a young matron of Seattle. "Such claims of a man shortage make single men more vain and harder to get and the married men more independent and unsatisfied. It also starts single girls running after anything that wears pants just to get a man. There is actually no shortage of husband material. Any intelligent girl can find plenty of men willing to marry her. I am a 26 years old and have been married four times. I'll bet I could get married four times more if I wanted to."

PLEASE NOTE

Marcel Boussac, French textile manufacturer and turf enthusiast, has on his breeding farm at Chantilly 150 broodmares estimated by experts to be worth $12,000,000. Imagine owning $12,000,000 worth of horses. The word colossal is hardly strong enough to describe that situation. Monsieur Boussac is indirectly responsible for the so-called "new look". He is the financial backer of Christian Dior, its originator.

CATS

When a New York Chinese laundryman or restaurant owner seeks a cat to rid his establishment of mice he goes to New Jersey to get one. The Chinese say the New York cats are useless as mousers. That they are not fierce enough and consequently the mice are not afraid of them. Furthermore, the Chinese allege the Manhattan cats don't care much for mouse hunting. They prefer to get out in the backyard or in the parks and hunt birds.

SMALL FELLOWS

When Johnny Evers broke in with the Chicago Cubs he weighed only 135 pounds. Joe Tinker didn't weigh much more. The smallest major league infielder I ever saw in action was Miller Huggins. When Huggins played second base for Cincinnati I don't believe he weighed over 125 pounds.

HORSES &amp; WOMEN

"As to the stargazers' claim that Scorpio girls can be kissed on the first date," writes a Chicagoan "it is true. I've checked it. I will be grateful for any similar information the stargazers or your Horoscopes & Women department can give me. I am a Jockey. I have been kept so busy since I was 12 years old learning about horses I have had practically no time to learn anything about women."

There seems to be a pleasant shortage of house flies this year. Would that condition just run parallel with the housing shortage, or is it, as someone else put it, "They all died with the D.D.T.'s."

Born, to Mr. and Mrs. R. V. Prior (formerly Ruby Kellar) at the Mannville hospital on Thursday, September 16, a daughter Jeanette Vivian.

Don't forget the Rally Day service at the United church Sunday school at 11:00 a.m. September 26. We are sorry to report that Mr. W. E. Walker was taken quite ill last Sunday. Mr. Walker was first taken to the Wainwright hospital but has since been removed to Edmonton.

Little Patricia Coffin had the misfortune to get her hand caught in the power washer last week. Fortunately no bones were broken and she suffered nothing worse than a bruised hand.

We couldn't complete our tale of minor casualties without mentioning one of our local oil merchants who broke the tip of his finger under a weighty barrel of oil. Pretty hard luck, Clifford, to have one's trigger finger in a cast with all these ducks, cranes, geese, etc. about.
